Conducted by Pres. Doug Millett

Introductions - Name & Position

We have different responsibilities -

We need to share in helping others

Had a pyramid of photos and art (under a blank one still - man w/ broken arm foot and man in hospital

each person needs some help - not all of us can ^{all} see the pictures - all council men are needed to contribute their ideas and what they know of people and situations

We have to be in tune to the Spirit to know who/how to help

Help everyone repent if needed - and to get to the temple

The Savior is concerned about everyone but he needs us all to meet the needs of our brothers & sisters

We need to help assist the Bishop in the "work" of the ward.

"You are great in the sight of the Lord"
Handbook 3.2.2 (p.12)

"Participate in Councils" - discuss ways to help individuals & families & determine effective ways to serve

4.4 (p.16) - the Ward Council Mission
all have responsibility for ward member use the "New and Returning Member Progress Form" as "Missionary Progress Record"

Family names	Chair
	What/Who	Baptism	Temple
Van Winkle
Sean Gleason
Hoegspner
Sean Gleason

Get all of ward support team (VT, HT, etc) to the Baptism and to the Temple - involve a lot of people

Get folks to the temple [early] to do baptisms - do all possible to help them get there - Be a support team

Look at individuals - love them & help them feel important - VT & HT looks at names of those not taught (name by name)

How are your testimonies? How well do we know that we lived with Heavenly Father as His children?

Jesus suffered and bled for us...

Be there for the youth -

Divided to teams to visit families in need.

Dana Ward Annual History 2012

Mesa South Stake, Mesa, Arizona

Sec.), Kevin Hunt as Ward Clerk, (Brother Hunt was released as Ward Clerk and Lance McGraw was sustained as the new Ward Clerk). Assistant Ward Clerk: Efrain Rodriguez. The Dana Ward Mission Plan for 2012 was as follows:

1. Every Ward member/family invite at least one individual/family to a Church activity at least once each quarter of the year.

Another highlight was to get to attend a small LDS Branch meeting in Ho Chi Minh City (formerly Saigon). There were about 122 members in attendance. John D. Andes, 101, of Tempe, will be honored today, on Arizona's 100th birthday. He says maintaining positive friendships, exercising and laughing often help you stay young. MARK HENLE/THE REPUBLIC

Acclaim for being older than Arizona

State's splendors still delight 101-year-old who will be lauded today

By Jose Zavala

The Republic | azcentennial.com

John D. Andes has visited 89 countries in his 101 years. But of all the places he's visited, some of his favorites are the Grand Canyon, the White Mountains and the parks and areas around Tucson.

Andes is among Arizona's 100-year-old residents, companies and non-profit organizations who will be honored today, on the state's centennial, with a brunch at the Sheraton Phoenix Downtown Hotel.

A native of Kansas, Andes spent 38 years as an educator, beginning as a teacher in an elementary school in Kansas in 1933 and retiring from San Francisco State University in 1970.

A typical day for Andes, who lives at Friendship Village in Tempe, consists of exercising in the retirement community's gym, making a simple breakfast, reading the newspaper, attending Friendship Village functions and picking up books from the library within the retirement community.

Darrell Jensen, the former executive director at Friendship Village, has known Andes for more than 20 years and served several years on the board of directors with Andes.

"He's such an ultimate professional and a classy guy," Jensen said. "I considered him a real mentor during the time that he served on the board. He's humble and one of those few people in life that you want to become like."

Andes' tips on staying young include keeping cheerful friends, continue learning, enjoy simple things, exercise, surround yourself with what you love, cherish your memories and laugh often.

Besides his generosity, those who know Andes best speak of how he values education. His daughter, Norma Speer, remembers the best piece of advice he ever gave her: "Get an education. Prepare yourself for a career so you don't have to be dependent on anybody."

Oldest UA Grad Recalls Time at School

Root as an Army sergeant during WWII.

By Jeff Harrison, University Communications, March 5, 2012

Jess Root, along with four dozen other centenarians, was honored on Arizona's 100th birthday in February.

When Arizona celebrated its 100th birthday in February, Gov. Jan Brewer hosted a brunch for about 50 special guests. All of them were alive when Arizona joined the Union on Feb. 14, 1912.

Many are transplanted from other parts of the country, but the oldest native Arizonan at the festivities was Jess Root, who may also be the oldest living alumnus of the University of Arizona.

A few of the memories are starting to fade with time, but Root still remembers what it was like going to school at the UA in the early 1930s. Now 105 and living in Mesa, Ariz., with his daughter, Root graduated in 1934, during some of the darkest days of the Great Depression.

Jess Root was born just a few days before Christmas in 1906 in Pima, Ariz., one of a handful of neighboring agricultural communities nestled along the Gila River that includes Safford, Thatcher, Solomon and Central. Growing up, Root went to school, including his first two years of college, at what would eventually become Eastern Arizona College in Thatcher.

As a transfer student, Root joined a UA campus significantly smaller than today's, contained then by Park Avenue on the west, Cherry Avenue on the east and Second and Fourth streets on the north and south.

Only the newly completed Arizona Stadium, finished in 1929, fell outside the boundaries. About half of the 24 buildings on campus then still survive and are on the National Register of Historic Places.

Tucson, with about 33,000 residents, was booming. The city's population had grown five fold since the turn of the century, in no small part due to a growing university and its 2,200 students.

Root called his UA experience "very agreeable." He majored in chemistry, took classes in math and physics, joined a fraternity and played baseball for coach Fred Enke.

Tuition was "about $40 a semester, and that was big money in those days," he said. "I hashed my way through school working at the Copper Kettle Café," a restaurant in the square at Park and University.

"Going in as a junior, I missed out on some of the freshman activities, but I got along just fine," he said. Old Main was the central hub of the UA. Root said he marveled at the size of Bear Down, a gym that could accommodate three basketball games at a time. He spent his first semester living at Cochise Hall, earning a bit of money there by sweeping up, before moving to a fraternity house.

And despite the poor economy, there was still fun to be had in Tucson.

"During Prohibition, the fraternity had a Model A touring car, so every once in a while we would go down to Douglas or Nogales for fun. They took me along to drive back home because I didn't do too much drinking. One night at a dance, they paired me with a (considerably taller) 6-foot girl as a prank. But we danced and had a lot of fun."

Root said he was active in athletics, playing baseball and tennis and running track.

He said he also acquired a nickname in college. Playing baseball in Douglas against a team from Mexico, "the girls there would say 'Hey, Charlie, if you hit a home run, we'll give you a kiss.' After that I was known as Charlie."

Root flirted briefly with pro baseball, playing with the Safford Haybailers after he graduated, but his career took him elsewhere.

With his chemistry degree, Root headed for Globe hoping to land a job in the assay office for the Old Dominion Mine, a major copper producer. Unfortunately, the mine flooded and operations shut down, and it subsequently became a reservoir for the town.

Back home in Safford, Root said the high school teacher there offered him a part-time job teaching. "So I taught Spanish, algebra and general science. Then the CCC (Civilian Conservation Corps) came along and I got a job with them as an educational adviser until they closed. Then I got a teaching job in Ash Fork (west of Flagstaff) until WWII started.

"Because I had a degree in chemistry, the Army sent me to their chemical warfare center for about three years before they moved me into military intelligence, and I served the rest of the time there. I went to OCS (Officer Candidate School) but they found out I was color blind, so that prevented me from becoming an officer."

After the war, Root started teaching in Thatcher and married Rowena Richardson, a teacher from Safford. The couple had two sons and a daughter, and moved to Phoenix where Root opened a clinical laboratory for hospitals.

Asked when he was last on the UA campus, Root said he took his two young sons to see a football game in Arizona Stadium to watch Cats and running back Art Luppino, the Cactus Comet, who in 1954 lead the nation in rushing, scoring, all-purpose running, and kickoff returns. Luppino also became the first player in NCAA history to lead the nation in rushing twice.

Root has long since retired, and has outlived virtually everyone he went to school with, but he was one of the many thousands of Arizonans who were instrumental in using their skills to build the state during the mid-20th century. Of his time at the UA, he didn't hesitate to say that he'd do it all over again. "I enjoyed it. I had a good time," he said, and added, "Bear Down."
